Subject: Weinberger v. ESI

Dear Mr. Englander,

I was very dismayed to learn that Mr. Azoulay called Mr. Weinberger today and wanted to talk about a settlement "without getting the attorneys involved." While Mr. Weinberger is, of course, happy to discuss a settlement, proper channels of communication must be observed. We want a complete accounting of all commissions for Kevin Rodgers and all sales people hired by ESI after May 28, 2011. I am sure Mr. Azoulay could have accomplished that by now and, if he hasn't, it shouldn't take very long to acquire the information. If you would like to provide me the information and then delay your answer to the complaint while we discuss, I am also amenable to that. However, we will not discuss a settlement without the commissions accounting and, in the interim, please ask your client to refrain from discussing or attempting to discuss the lawsuit with Mr. Weinberger.

Thank you.

Mr. Silverberg,

Your client, Mr. Azoulay, has a bad habit of violating the rule regarding ex parte conduct with parties in litigation. My client forwarded me a text from Mr. Azoulay in which he solicited documents directly relevant to the litigation. Any requests for documents must come from you through a formal request in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

If there are any further attempts at ex parte contact, I will inform the Court of Mr. Azoulay's actions.
